NOTES OF TRAVEL.

The Beautiful Scenery of Two Rivers Contrasted.

In the spring I wrote from St. Augustine, Florida, thence I went up the St. Johns river to Sanford, the head of navigation, some further by rail to Kissimmee, full half way down the peninsula. After five weeks there I returned by the river route to Jacksonville, then to Fernandina, where a ship carried me to Charleston, S. C., in time to be present at the unveiling of the Calhoun statue and the oration of Secretary Lamar. On board the ship again I continued to New York. I went on up the Hudson to West Point for a few days, then back to New York and Philadelphia. Here I heard Patti again, at her "farewell" appearance. Then I spent ten days in Cape May, N. J., and stopped on my return for several days before a visit of like duration in Washington during the national encampment and drill of the militia. Then I came up to West Point for graduation week and on last Saturday saw my old class march up for the diplomas that vouch for their four years work. My congratulations had no tinge of envy, for they were no happier to get out than I was in '85. From here I go to Albany and then to the mountains of Vermont.

I am visiting at a house where George Washington was often a guest. The ground about is covered with fortifications which a century has not sufficed to crumble. My eyes have never rested on a more lovely spot. From the window the glorious Hudson river is seen and it suggests a comparison. The St. Johns, of Florida, is about of the same length and average breadth. Both rise and ebb with the ocean tides; both are beautiful, but oh, how different. The St. Johns rises in the marshes of Southern Florida and moves sluggishly northward between low-lying banks, thick-fringed with cypress and willow and tropical palmettoes; its waters are opaque—almost black—with the vegetable matter and mold they hold in suspension; alligators bask on fallen trees near the water line; only an occasional orange grove breaks the primeval view, and the noise of parallel railway trains is unheard. The Hudson, taking its source in the Adirondacks, cleaves its way southward through these mountains and the Catskills and Highlands, past the towering palisades to its very mouth; along its banks on either side are railways oft traveled by rushing trains; cities and towns are always in sight; steamboats, swift as trains, yachts, schooners, sloops and long tows of canal boats keep its waters in constant turmoil; yet its rocky banks give back no color and the blue is almost as clear as the ocean's. Both are grand rivers but the Hudson is the grander. Still, if one wished to abide in the country of either of these rivers, I should recommend that of the St. Johns. For, say what they may, there is no place I have seen in twenty-five states where a man of energy has so many or so good chances to grow wealthy legitimately as in Florida. How? At orange culture, rice or sugar growing, real estate investment, truck growing, and in many other ways. The climate has no more discomforts than that of the north. Why did not I stay there? I may tell you when I have seen thirteen more states.

The Most Agreeable

As well as the most effective method of dispelling Headaches, Colds, and Fevers, or cleansing the system, is by taking a few doses of the pleasant California liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs, 50 cts and $1 bottles for sale by Simpson & Co.

Bates County Horticultural Society.

The Bates county Horticultural society met in regular session at the residence of A. C. Skinner Saturday last.

As is usual at the picnic meetings the attendance was large and the time until two o'clock spent in social converse and dispatching an excellent dinner spread under the trees.

G. W. Johnson, D. Cresap and daughter, S. R. McCowan and Thomas Irish and wife, niece and daughters, of south of the river were present.

The meeting was called to order by President C. I. Robards.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

C. I. Robards, G. W. Johnson and D. Cresap were appointed a committee to have charge of the premium exhibit to be made at the September meeting.

Two committees to solicit donations to be applied in supplying premiums for that meeting, one north and the other south of the river, were appointed. The committee north of river composed of Henry Speer, J. R. Harriman, C. I. Robards and Henry Frances. D. Cresap, G. W. Johnson, Thos. Irish and S. R. McCowan, the committee for south of river have already received, on subscription, nearly two hundred dollars.

D. Cresap, who is not a fruit grower, further than for home use and consequently has "no ax to grind" in this matter, urged upon the society the necessity of making this fruit exhibit a credit to the county.

Every resident should do something toward establishing the reputation of Bates as a leading fruit producing county of the state.

The committee on orchards made verbal report, plenty of summer apples but winter varieties are scarce. Ben Davis, and Saps of Wine will make a fair showing.

Society concluded from reports received that the apple crop will not exceed 50 per cent.

Society reported Snowball apple as a good tree, and fruit of good color but small and affected by scab rendering it a poor apple for market.

Nothing new on small fruits except rust on raspberry canes. Where strawberry vines are affected with rust mow them off close to the earth rake the leaves off and burn them will assist in destroying the germ. Set plants in rows, thoroughly cultivate and keep clean as weeds hold moisture and moisture increases the disease. If beds so treated are thoroughly sprinkled with lime and sulphate of copper the disease may be controlled if not removed. Hartford's Prolific and Concord grapes are already afflicted by black rot. The Clinton and Delaware have so far escaped but the only way to save the grape crop will be to derive some means which will prevent the poison, which arises from the earth, from falling upon the fruit. For the spores to take root requires temperature of 60 degree Fahrenheit and moisture, so whatever will prevent moisture reaching fruit will prevent rot. Sprinkling with sulphate of copper and lime, sacking the fruit or nailing board on post above vine were all considered favorably but no absolute specific has yet been discovered.

Committee on Ornithology and Entomology report plum crop destroyed by gouger and curculio. Worm in foliage of apple trees already at work. These worms may be destroyed by a little care at once. Every fruit grower was urged to go through his orchard cutting the affected leaves and burn or crush the insects. If allowed to mature they will strip the tree of its leaves.

Tea made from the tomato vine and sprayed over the cabbage plant in the evening was suggested as a remedy for cabbage worms.

L. B. Allison reported a new bird in his trees and D. T. McKibben reported a bird very destructive to cherries. Further reports of these birds referred to next meeting.

"What Trees to Plant for Ornament," was thoroughly treated by A. C. Skinner, in an excellent paper. Considering the growth, longevity and ability to withstand drought he recommended for lawn, white elm interspersed with sugar maple, box elder, walnut and pecan; for street, elm, and sycamore; for borders, red-bud, snowball and horse chestnut; for wind-break, red cedar.

Local societies in adjoining counties made subject of earnest consideration of society.

Special subjects assigned for next meeting: "How Can We Induce our Neighboring Counties to Organize Societies?" G. W. Johnson, of Sprague; "Shall we discontinue the culture of the plum?" N. B. Newberry; "Cherry Planting," J. R. Harriman.

Society adjourned to meet at the residence of N. B. Newberry on the third Saturday in July.

East Boone Items.

Ed. TIMES—Since my last writing I have gathered considerable news for the "booming TIMES." Northern Bates is on a boom now. The Santa Fe railroad company have surveyed a route for a new railroad through East Boone township. It comes from the northwest down Mormon Fork, passing through James McNeil's, Frank Graham's, Henry Mudd's and James Bagby's farms, and running southeast to Adrian. Mr. Editor, we think in the event this line of railroad is built, it will be a good thing for Northern Bates. James McNeil offers to give 40 acres of land to the railroad company for a depot and town on his place we understand.

Crops in general are looking fine. Your correspondent has been traveling over the country since our last writing and the corn crop especially, is as fine a prospect as we ever saw. Your correspondent had new Irish potatoes to eat on the 24th of May. How much can anybody beat that?

Mr. Geo. Slater, who recently sold out in Cass county is talking of locating at or near Adrian, with his fine horses and jacks we understand.

Mr. Charlie Parish has sold his farm to one Mr. McCoy.

Mr. Wm. Hoffman has the finest piece of flax we have seen this season.

S. C. Marshall planted two acres and a half in white navy beans. We predict Mr. Marshall's back will get pretty tired before he gets them all gathered. Oh, but can't he have plenty of bean soup this winter?

B. B. Marshall and Wm. R. Marshall have about 60 acres of the largest corn we have seen this season, taking the piece all over.

Mr. Editor, we would have liked to have eaten some of that fine ham with you, but alas for us. We will write again if we don't find our way to the waste basket.

CORRESPONDENT.

Building Associations.

A sensible writer speaking of the many building and loan associations organizing throughout the west, very pertinently and truthfully says: "I hold that building associations are the most potent factors in a state for the destruction of communism and socialism. Give the clerk and mechanic an interest in the soil, with a comfortable house above it, and you make them enemies of the wild theorists who advocate an equal division of property. The man who organizes a building association should be regarded as a benefactor, and be entitled to a premium from the state. He is the poor man's friend, the rich man's protector and the state's defender."
